Letter to my Daughter Jamie on the Seventh Anniversary of her Death

Happy Heavenly Birthday my sweet angel. Seven long years since I have been able to see you or talk to you. I don't know how I have gotten to this point. I think of you every day and wish you were here to experience all the life you are missing with your kids, nieces, nephews, brothers and entire family. We love you and miss you so much. You are also remembered and missed by so many people. I hope you are able to look down on us and watch over all that we do with your kids and to help other kids in similar situations.

Chloe and Cody are doing well and very active in sports and school. They are so talented and beautiful and we try very hard to help them in every way that we can. Chloe is 10 already and turning into a beautiful young lady while Cody is 7 and he is all boy. He is a good little athlete.

The hole in my heart will never heal. Some days are still so bad it makes it very hard for me to function. At times I don't know what to do with myself. The grief just takes over and actually takes my breath away. I have come to the conclusion that it will not get better until I see you again. I really hope you are at peace in Heaven. I promise that I will always continue to do my best for your family, kids and Foundation. Please look down upon us and help if you can. I love you with all of my heart and will till the day I die and then I will still love you forever.

I have to continue to hold onto the thought that I will see you again some day and I know how excited you will be to show me around. There is a song with the title "Show Me Around" that I listen to all the time because it reminds me so much of you! I miss your smile, your laugh, your excitement for life and above all your love for all of us. We will be reunited some day!

I read something recently that stuck with me. It said some children are not meant to be here with us for a long time. Some are here only for a very short time but their impact on the world doesn't end when they leave us. They are always around to teach us about love, kindness, generosity and empathy. You were only here for 38 short years but you continue to teach us and change peoples' lives and as a result change our world for the better. Rest in peace my sweet angel. We will never forget you.

XOXO
Dad
